

CANADA TRADE STILL GROWING

(Brantford Expositor)

Reports from all parts of the Dominion afford the most convincing proof that Canada's outlook for the future is steadily becoming brighter. Remarkable progress was made in many directions in the year just closed. The exports of Canadian products were valued at $578,800,000, in the available period of 1935, compared with $526,000,000 for the corresponding months of 1934. This increase, while by no means spectacular, is considered satisfactory. Eight of the nine groups of the chief classifications showed gains. The shipment of animal products increased by 18 per cent. Textile exports showed a gain of 28.3 per cent. Substantial advances were also reported in wood and paper products, which reached the relatively high total of $142,000,000. The iron and steel groups recorded an increase of 29.4 per cent. There was also a gain of 11 per cent. in the output of electric energy. In brief commercial and industrial activities throughout the entire Dominion revealed a gratifying expansion.

The general improvement resulted very largely from the easier trade relationships with other countries, both inside and outside the British Empire. One of the most conspicuous factors was the increased purchasing power shown by the agricultural industry as the result of higher prices and wider markets for its products. This manifested itself in all the channels of business throughout the country and even greater things are looked for in this direction in 1936. As an indication of the general prosperity, the value of the securities listed on the Toronto Stock Exchange increased during the past year by more than $700,000,000. There was an increase of $30,000,000 paid in dividends compared with 1934, making the total disbursements $225,000,000. The value of mineral production throughout the Dominion aggregated about $300,000,000, which constituted an all-time high level. Canada's progress is based very largely on the prosperity of its primary industries, including agriculture, forestry, mining and fisheries. If these maintain the expansion gained in 1935, with the increases that are anticipated in addition, the Dominion should enjoy the greatest volume of industry and trade experienced since the depression began. Much is expected from the Reciprocity Treaty with the United States which provides a wider outlet for many primary products, and also from the adjustment which are to be made in the imperial trade pacts. Canadians certainly have good reason for confidence and courage in 1936.

The Crop

Life is just a collection of garden plots—ribbons bits running parallel in endless array—a strip to each individual.

As one sows so one shall reap is a statement too true to be questioned, too well proved by experience to be controverted. In accepting it there is one side of the matter often overlooked in the rush and roar of things as they are. Many times it is forgotten that as one sows so others will reap—contemporaries today, descendants also on some still far off tomorrow.

Each allotted span of life may be looked upon as a garden space in which he who has it works or idles, the crop depending on the thought, time and care expended. Any given patch may be made a coldly formal place, a waste where weeds riot, or become a great blossoming with fragrance that lasts long after the gardener has forever laid down his spade. He who tends well his plot has no need of marble to perpetuate his memory.

At this season when man, looking over last year's output, is apt to be contrite though unchanged, he might be wise to study his garden needs and plan a future. Annuals make good showing. Biennials last a longer time. Like habits, perennials once established, will grow and flourish. But what matters are the everlasting—those things which live on when the tiller is no more.

Any neighborhood is enriched by a garden where smiles scattered widely turn into flowers of happiness, and grandmother's borders blaze with the blooming of kindly little deeds grown into hardy plants. From such a spot one cannot tell how far the wind will carry the pollen and the perfume. Untold is the power of the sower. From his plot may be blown a seed of good or evil—great enough to alter a world.—Ottawa Journal.

NEW IDEAS

Walls are painted to imitate wood—and you have to touch the wall before you'll believe it isn't wood—lamps are trimmed with crystal and opaque glass is being used for mantels, fireplaces and all sorts of unusual things. A unique games room is designed on the lines of the deck of an ocean liner. It's complete with locker, portholes, deckchairs, shuffleboard, quoits, darts, etc. And there's an adjoining bar all done in powder blue and navy.

A Law Every Mother Should Know and Observe

Never Give Your Child An Unknown Remedy without Asking Your Doctor First

According to any doctor you ask, the only safe way is never to give your child a remedy you don't know all about, without asking him first.

When it comes to "milk of magnesia," that you know everywhere, for over 60 years, doctors have said "PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia for your child."

So—always say Phillips' when you buy. And, for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets this; the finest men know. Made in Canada.

London Port Figures Show Improved Trade

London.—The tonnage of both exported and imported goods dealt with by the Port of London Authority during 1934-35 showed an increase over the figures for the previous 12 months.

The total imports, amounting to 32,696,921 tons, represented an advance of 7.4 per cent, and the exports—6,587,585 tons—an increase of 4.4 per cent. Shipping paying river duties of tonnage was up by 2.1 per cent, and shipping using the wet docks by 0.5 per cent.

The shipping entering the dry docks of the Authority during the twelve months was 3,133,349 tons gross, compared with 3,145,568 tons in the previous year.

Potatoes For Fitness

Although few people realize it, the potato is one of the most valuable vegetables in the working man's diet. The average housewife, however, uses it largely because of its cheapness.

It is rich in vitamins A, B and C, and is also an excellent antiscorbutic. In fact, scurvy is unknown in countries where potatoes form a regular part of the diet. Most people imagine that they are fattening, but Dr. H. K. Archibald, who has done a considerable amount of research work on the potato, says it may be included in any diet without the slightest qualms. It is very nutritious, and with the addition of a little butter and salt men have lived exclusively on a diet of potatoes for 300 days, keeping in perfect health the whole time.

Safety First

Farmer (to new hand from the city)—Now, when you are attending to these mules, I warn you not to approach them from the rear without speaking to them first.

New Hand—Why is that; is it a question of etiquette on the farm?

Farmer—No, it ain't a matter of etiquette at all. But one of them mules is liable most any time to kick you—all in the head, an' I don't want a lot of lame mules on my hands.

Foreman—See here, Buddy, that other fellow is carrying two sticks of timber when you're carrying only one. What have you got to say?

Buddy—That fellow's too lazy to go twice.

MINTO TODAY AND TOMORROW

(By Prof. S. B. McCreedy)

"Editor's Note: This is the second of a series of 10 articles which were published recently in the Harrison Review." While written specially for the "Review" and addressed to residents of Minto Township particularly, we believe they will be found interesting to many of the readers of this paper because the problems of the farm folk of Minto Township are the same problems that confront rural people throughout the Province.

A few weeks ago there passed away in the person of Thomas Madigan, the first white child born in Minto Township. He was 83 years old, which means that his parents likely came in about the year 1851 from the Owen Sound road entrance before the township was surveyed.

The township was surveyed by Charles Rankin of Owen Sound in 1853 and in 1854 there was a public sale of the land. But settlers had come in before this. Wm. Reynolds and Geo. Lyons came in in 1851 and probably the Madigans preceded them. The Harrisons, Wilkins, Fergusons and Bells came in 1853; the Brides in 1854 and John Livingstone and Wm. Lemon in 1855.

So Minto is getting on in years. What hosts of people have come and gone from its farms! What a history could be written of every one of those farms! The clearing; the log shanty and barn; the road-making; the logging bees; the births and marriages and deaths; the first school and the early teachers; the new house and the barn raising; the emigrations to the West and all the triumphs and failures, all the joys and sorrows that mortals experience in this queer world.

I have often wished that all these histories might be suitably recorded before it is too late; and carefully preserved in the Public Library. It would be a very well worth while work for the schools of the Township and the History Department of the High School. Some of the township Women's Institutes have done commendable work in this connection. It is to be hoped all such work is kept in well bound Scrap Books so that it may be available for the children's children of Minto pioneers.

But it is Minto as it is today that I want to set forth here. Not so much about its people as about its lands and its Agriculture development. I am quoting the figures as they are given to the Census and Statistics reports prepared by the Government.

According to the map, Minto has an area of 113 square miles. It is not that far from the Township of Huron, its north-east corner. It would be a rectangle 10.5 x 11.4 miles. Huron is in the very centre of the township. The population of the Township in 1931 was 2504 and of these 1330 were over 21 years of age in 1934 and entitled to vote in Provincial elections. There are 17 one-teacher schools in the township attended probably by one-fifth of the population, namely 460 children.

According to the 1931 census, there were 587 farms in the township with an average of four persons living on each. 480 of the farms (82%) are worked by their owners. Only 67 farms are operated by tenants. 258 of the farms (44%) range in size between 51 and 100 acres. 198 of the farms (34%) range between 101 and 200 acres. 31 farms range between 201 and 299 acres. 11 farms are over 300 acres.

There are relatively few small farms in Minto. There are 16 ranging between 1 and 4 acres; 14 between 5 and 10 acres and 59 between 11 and 50 acres. So 85% of the farms are larger than 51 acres.

SOME MINTO STATISTICS

The 1931 Census reveals the following interesting facts:—The total value of the stock was $462,970 but this was a depression price. There were 2261 horses, 9953 cattle, 3799 sheep, 15,484 swine and 66,717 poultry. 14,711 lbs. of wool were sold. The eggs sold were valued at $41,015. The total sales of domestic animals and poultry sold alive in 1930 was $321,557. The total income for wool, eggs and animals, not counting private sales, was $364,054.

Figures are not given for other sales from the farms, including milk, fruit, wood, grains, seeds, hay, potatoes, turnips. So one can only guess what the total income of the 587 Minto farms would be in 1930. Even at the depressed prices prevailing, I hazard a calculation at $1,000,000.

There were 36,556 acres in crops, including 1070 acres in wheat, 1585 acres in barley, 10,767 acres in oats, 7741 in mixed grains, 12,979 in hay, clover and alfalfa, 401 acres in corn, 338 in turnips and 135 acres in mangels and sugar beets, 8,946 acres are woodland and 19,104 acres stated to be "unimproved."

The total assessment for Minto in 1933 was $2,418,424, including $1,755,079 for the land and $663,345 for buildings. The taxes raised totaled $13,552 including $11,709 for schools and $1,843 for municipal expenses. The total receipts for 1933 was $54,527 and the total expenditure $47,046. These figures include debt service payments, etc.

So the 587 farmers of Minto are in Big Business! They operate a 2½ million dollar plant; have an annual income of $1,000,000 (?) with a net annual loss (?) or gain (?) of how much? Who knows? If Minto farmers are in similar plight to farmers in other parts of Ontario, as reported to me in my journeyings, then 50% or more are very hard up and looking anxiously for a way out of their difficulties.

What is the Minto of tomorrow to be? I wonder what change the next sixty-five years will show. By co-operation and improved methods doubtless there may be great advancement. For such a forward movement, in my opinion there must be a forward step in education. In my article next week I shall tell why I went to Denmark.

Skilled Trades Now Offer Good Openings For Young People

Opportunities for young people who contemplate careers as skilled craftsmen are excellent, according to Walter B. Pitkin, author of "New Careers for Youth."

"Industry wants to know," he says in the Rotarian Magazine, "where tomorrow's skilled craftsmen are coming from. Finding few, employers are beginning to open up apprentice training courses to help meet the most acute shortage of skilled labor this country has ever known."

"In Detroit, the mechanical industries need 3,000 highly skilled workers each year, merely to replace those who drop out because of sickness, accident, death, promotion, transfer, and old age. This makes no allowance for the growth of industries, nor for the birth of new ones."

"Employers in other industrial parts of the country are today faced with similar skilled labor shortages. Foresighted in installing new machines and methods to cut costs in hard times, employers have been extraordinarily short-sighted in training and retraining workers to utilize these results."

"In America's metal industries alone," Dr. Pitkin continues, "at least 19,000 skilled workers are urgently wanted in plants operating today at far less than capacity. As business improves, production will step up proportionately. If it approaches the levels of the Twenties, there will be a shortage of 123,000 skilled workers in the metal industries."

"While not quite so acute elsewhere, the shortage still plagues other industries. We know 2 important facts: (1) Skilled workers are wanted in all fields where new machines and methods have improved beyond the capacities of the older workers; and (2) in American factories other than those in the metal fields, at least 6,000 new skilled artisans must be found each year to replace those dropping out. If the plants are to operate about as they did in 1930, there is need for this estimate does not include a single skilled worker in the clothing industries, the publishing business, breweries and distilleries, railroads, and marine shipping. Nor does it include such other enormous fields as retailing and agriculture."

"Openings will probably be most numerous in Connecticut, Massachusetts, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin. But there will be thousands of jobs elsewhere, even in small towns and villages, many of which have already reported acute shortages."

Several special speakers are to address the three months course in agriculture and home economics at Beamsville this week. Both boys' and girls' classes will be closed on Tuesday. Wednesday Donald MacKenzie of the National Fertilizer Co., Ingersoll, is to exhibit five films particularly on the methods of manufacturing fertilizer. McPhail, assistant of the agricultural representatives branch, Toronto, will address the classes.

TO ELIMINATE ICE MENACE AT FALLS

A small army of men in hip-length rubber boots are working in the Niagara river hurrying to completion a new ice chute for the Ontario Power company. In three shifts, the men are making the chute of concrete chute, which, it is hoped, will forever eliminate the ice menace, which halts generation and supply of Hydro power at times during the winter.

Later a second chute will be built. In other years it has been necessary to blast out the ice, and it has been found that damage has been caused to the piers of the powerhouse, weakening the structure.

BOWDISH CHRISTMAS DISPLAY

Dear Mr. Editor:

I would like to write a line or two in your paper to tell some of our town folks of a beautiful Christmas display I saw in Brookville, Pa. while spending four weeks with my mother, Mrs. (Dr.) Millward and Mrs. C. R. Walters and I was so impressed with the display I wanted others to know about it. When I registered we were near the three thousand number who had visited it and this is the fourteenth year this has been displayed by the Bowdish family who give up their home to the public for one month to view it and believe it is worth while. Variegated lighting effects added to the glory of the display while the series of illuminated images and scenery are as follows, each in turn lit up to see the effect. There are in one room, nine in number and are about 2 feet long, 1 1/2 feet high and 1 foot deep. In the first group are: Silent Night, Birth of Christ, Flight Into Egypt, The Good Shepherd, In the Wilderness, Come Unto Me, In the Garden of Gethsemane, The Crucifixion, The Resurrection. In the next room, the theme of current Bowdish display is a New England Village and humor is mixed with homey atmosphere. It is a faithful reproduction while the thundering Transcontinental Ltd. roaring over treaties and through tunnels and among the trees is a masterpiece as

MAIL CARRIER

IN ACCIDENT FINED

A $50 fine, ten days in county jail, which will be increased to 30 days if the fine is not paid, another $10 fine and a suspension of his driver's card for two months, was the sentence meted out in St. Catharines city police court to John Wiley, mail carrier, residing at R.R. No. 1 Fonthill, when Magistrate Campbell convicted him of a hit-and-run charge.

The formal charge was that Wiley failed to return to the scene of accident on January 6th, with a second one that he failed to report the same to the police. The action was the aftermath of a collision with a wagon of the city garbage department about 7 a.m., breaking the hip of a horse attached thereto.

The Lincoln County Humane Society has given out warning that it is against the law for motorists to run over a cat or dog and not to stop to make inquiries as to the ownership. Action is to be taken, the society warned against people who do this, under the provisions of the Ontario highway traffic act.

THE TATTOOING OF POULTRY

Over 8 years ago the Canadian Baby Chick Association received many reports of poultry thefts, all serious. Many were in large numbers, and it was felt that we should take this project up to our chick customers. In the early Spring of 1935 we carried on a survey through our members who definitely reported 28,000 birds stolen, and owing to the incomplete coverage it is reasonable to increase this amount to 40,000 birds and really worth about $50,000.00 which was a total loss to the poultrymen — our customers.

When we had this information the next thing was to see how we could prevent it, and so the matter was looked up from a tattooing point of view. Correspondence and personal calls in the different states as to what they were doing, and a mass of information was gathered, and then we were asked by the int. st. poultrymen of Halton County to sponsor the putting on of this project in Ontario. Meetings were held, committees appointed, and a "brief" prepared, and finally arrangements were made to meet Attorney General Roebuck, at Toronto, on October 14th. A very pleasant reception was had, and he was enthusiastic over finally finding a method to curb poultry stealing. The delegation also was in conference with the provincial police on the same day, and the whole thing looked as though it would be a very short time until this project would be before the poultrymen. You see it is necessary to get the provincial police interested so that the tattoo markers could be properly registered at headquarters, so that if you lost your poultry you would call on your nearest provincial police and they would do the rest. This Association offered to do all the

A warm summer breeze came up and the noon day sun scintillated through the lofty trees down onto the newly arrived worshippers in the Circle while all around lay the deep forest; quiet, tranquil, great trunks rising blackly to the sky. Finding good seats well up near the front, Mrs. O'Neill, her face beaming, remarked, "There must be all of five hundred people here."

"I should think so, too," said Mrs. Morton looking around. "By Saturday we'll be having a wonderful camp meeting, the weather is so fine."

On the platform the speakers and leaders who had arrived began to take their places. When some semblance of order was established the Rev. Michael Fawcett of Grimsby, big and burly, got up to begin the service. An expectant hush fell on the assembly. He welcomed them warmly in his rich brogue and opened the meeting with the announcement of a stirring old Methodist hymn. There was no hesitation. They stood eagerly, someone started the note and every one joined in with vigour and ardor.

"Come Thou Fount of Every Blessing."

Tune my heart to sing Thy grace, Streams of Mercy never ceasing.

Call for songs of loudest praise. Another song immediately followed, for people were coming in steadily although no one heeded the disturbance. The voices rang out again.

"Come to the Saviour, make no delay
Here to our hearts He's shown us
the way..."

"Sing, good people, be joyful," the preacher called waving his arm. A double volume of song echoed through the forest.

"Joyful, joyful will the meeting be,
When from Sin our Hearts are pure and free..."

The great camp meeting proper had begun. Prayers of supplication were raised to invoke the descent of the spiritual power while special attention was given at the outset to quicken the faith and zeal of those already converted to draw out their sympathy for the unconverted, many of whom were still to come.

The Rev. John Wakefield preached the first sermon. His clear ringing voice with its rapid utterance and his searching charges, at once commanded attention. He was zealous, outspoken and fearless, yet his manner was gentle and persuasive. The peacemaker he was called, loved and revered. He chose his text from I Kings 18th Chap. 41st verse. "There is a sound of abundance of rain."

After the service, prayer meetings were held. Mrs. Nesh, emotional and enthusiastic, was the first to gather a group around her and started singing themselves into the spirit over near the preacher's stand. In different portions people were forming while late arrivals went back to their tents to finish getting settled.

Mrs. Morton thought, with Janet and Homer and little Annabel, made her way across to the Topleys. An idea had formed in her mind. "Maria John's mother died of the diphtheria the same as our Joyce," she explained to them on her way over. "I want you to be very nice to him!"

John Wakefield was beside them as they came up. "You didn't know Johnny in my namesake," he said affectionately putting his arm around the serious-eyed lad of eight standing beside his father.

"Well no, I didn't know you knew each other," she said kindly. "You see it was only last year we met at Smithville but we got so well acquainted there."

"I well remember you and your husband, Mrs. Morton, and how to see you here." Rev. Daniel Topley shook hands all around even remembering Annabel. There was a little over the average in height with handsome, masculine features; shaven except for the narrow bushy circle of well-trimmed black whiskers beneath his chin which revealed a good natured mouth with humorous turn at the corners, just now saddened from his recent bereavement. But to the boy the mother had been as his whole existence and now he was dependent on his father who was helplessly endeavouring to make up to his son in some measure at least what he had lost.

Mrs. Morton's whole being vibrated sympathy. "Why not let John stay with Homer and Janet for a while, Mr. Topley? It will do him good," she suggested in a motherly tone.

"The harassed man, relieved in spite of himself, thanked her and looked at his boy. A bright smile momentarily wreathed his childlike face as Homer beckoned him.

"We were to stay with the Fairfields," said his father, "but the boy can do as he wishes." Little John thought seriously. "I think I'll go with Homer, he's my age, father," he said old-fashionedly, looking up at him to see if he'd mind.

Mrs. Morton patted his cheek. "Janet, I will put you in charge of the two boys. You can go back to the tent while we're at prayer meeting and you may each have a nice big peach from the box—you know where it is?" she whispered aside. Jane nodded.

"Me too," said Annabel, interested enough at last to break away from her mother. Janet took charge of them all. "You'll be my little boy now," she said, "I've grown up sisterly voice, being five years the senior of the two boys.

The afternoon sped quickly by and loads of Methodist people, young and old, began to arrive from Grimsby village with their baskets for supper. Now the day's work was over. There were the Marsh's and the Moores, the Kitchens, Smiths and others while from the mountain came James Russ with his family, the Beamers, Bows-laughs, VanDuzers and many not Methodists but sympathetic to the cause.

Joe Carruthers began hunting his singers as soon as he arrived and gravitated immediately over to the O'Neill tent. The minute he saw Carrie who was with a number of new acquaintances his pulse quickened. "She's more beautiful every time I see her," he thought.

Walking over to them he politely said, "I'm getting my singers together for tonight and hope you'll join us." There was something compelling in his manner, with a confident look in his intelligent eyes ever ready to smile.

Carrie introduced her new friends. "This is Miss Comfort. Mary Campbell here tells me Martha has a lovely soprano voice, Mr. Carruthers."

He gladly included them. "We will sit together on the far side over there close to the platform." Then excusing himself he quickly made his way over to the group of young men who he ran into George.

"How are you, George? I've often seen you in the band with your drum but we never seemed to meet." He looked at him with keen interest and George, in spite of himself, liked him. "I didn't know you were a Morton till Carrie told me. We should have the band here." Then he laughed.

George shook his head. "No, I don't think we could very well play here. I can't imagine it. I think the preachers would vehemently object."

"I guess they would. I'd like it though. You were never out to singing school, were you? You have a good speaking voice. Ever try?"

"Well no, with my hand practice, I can't manage too many things."

"You better sit with the singers. Some one told me you were going to Victoria. I wish I had a chance like that," he said as he hurried away.

LIVED DURING REIGN OF FIVE MONARCHS

There is probably only one person in this district who has lived during the reigns of five British sovereigns. She is Mrs. David Gieger, of Chumpey, who will observe her 99th birthday, in February. She was born in 1837, during the reign of William IV. During the same year Queen Victoria ascended the throne, to be followed at later dates by Edward VII, George V and Edward VIII.

Eachman who read a passage of scripture and offered prayer after which the business of the meeting was proceeded with.

Reports, all of which were of an encouraging nature, were presented from The Session, The Women's Association, The Young Women's Auxiliary, The Sunday School, The Board of Stewards, The Missionary and Maintenance Fund, The Young People's Union, The Choir, The Mission Band, The C. G. I. T., The Tuxis Boys and Trail Rangers, The Badminton Club, and The Tennis Club.

The Treasurer's report indicated that the budget had been balanced for the year, in connection with which tribute was paid to the various organizations, particular reference being made to the Board of Stewards of which Mr. T. R. Hunter, has been the capable chairman. A large amount was raised for all purposes including substantial contributions to the missionary and benevolent funds, the various organizations reporting credit balances.

In reviewing the activities of the church, Rev. Mr. Eachman highly complimented the various departments of the church on the fine results achieved and emphasized that the congregation should seek to keep ever before them the spiritualities of their work.

The report of the Session indicated that the total resident membership had advanced to 302.

Contributions to the program which added much to the evening's enjoyment, comprised vocal solos by Mrs. W. B. Bain, soloist of Victoria Ave. United Church, Brandon, Man., a duet by Messrs Jack Ansell and Harold Jarvis, a vocal solo by Miss Carrie Durham and readings by J. D. Russ and G. L. Eaton.

Recognition of the splendid service given by the minister, Rev. E. A. Eachman and Mrs. Eachman, was voiced in an appreciative resolution which was heartily endorsed by the meeting.

A resolution appreciative of the supper which was served by the men of the church was also heartily approved as was a resolution expressing the church's appreciation to Mr. Bover of the Lincoln Floral Company for his generous donations of flowers to the church from time to time.

Miss Elsie Drury was re-elected treasurer and envelope secretary while Mr. E. J. Muir and Mr. A. V. Catton were elected auditors.

ICE JAM AT FORT ERIE

A ferry plying between Fort Erie, Ont., and Buffalo tore off part of the superstructure when an ice jam carried the vessel against the International Railway Bridge at Fort Erie, last week, but was able to gain the safety of the New York State Barge Canal, two miles down stream.

The ferry, a double-decked craft, carried passengers and automobiles. Heavy ice floes drifting down from Lake Erie after high winds seized the vessel as it crossed the Niagara River. The damaged vessel drifted from the bridge, after the collision and moved down stream, still in the grip of the ice.

HOME DESTROYED IN $10,000 FIRE

The beautiful home of H. J. Reiph, located off the Lake Shore Road east of Port Weller, was totally destroyed by fire early Thursday morning, involving a loss estimated at $10,000 covered by insurance.

The fire apparently started above the furnace, and from there spread rapidly throughout the fine brick structure. Mr. Reiph and the children, together with the nursemaid, were in the home at the time, Mrs. Reiph having remained with friends in the city overnight because of the blizzard. The occupants were able to escape with a few personal effects. A small quantity of furniture was also saved.

CANADIAN FILMS DURING 1935

Year-End Review—Canadian Short Film Production A Continued Success

Montreal. — Canada continued in 1935 to produce short sound films regularly which were shown widely in the Dominion's theatres and were very successful in other parts of the Empire. The showings of these Canadian featurettes on Canadian screens has been increasing steadily and satisfactorily for the past two seasons. The 1935 production program which includes two well-established series, the Canadian Cameos and Canadian Sport Chats, is to be announced shortly.

These facts are included in a year-end summary from Mr. J. E. Norrish, managing director of Associated Screen Studios. The growth in popularity of these Canadian-made films on Canadian subjects has been gradual but most definite. There is now, judging by the bookings, a definite public demand and a definite audience for each succeeding release.

The films themselves have also developed considerably since the first featurettes were produced by Associated Screen Studios several years ago. They have come a considerable distance from the straight scenic which really marked the beginning of actual Canadian film production for entertainment purposes.

Outstanding among the 1935 featurettes was "Hot and Happy", a one-reel whirlwind of all-Canadian action. It had flashes of a fighting 500-pound tuna battling with a fisherman in the North Atlantic, a 60-foot dive into the boiling waters of a waterfall as well as a close-up of the country's championship horsehoe pitcher at the peak of his form, "Acadian Spring Song", of an entirely different type, was a love story set among Annapolis apple blossoms with a distinctive musical score by Howard Fogg. It was just as successful on the Pacific coast as on the Atlantic coast where it was made.

One Canadian film subject has now blossomed out as an annual release and one Canadian film has become a perennial success. A Canadian Cameo called "Did You Know That?", released in 1934, was an entertaining melange of pictorial and geographical oddities from here and there all over the Dominion. Its immediate success led to a 1935 sequel and the sequel, in a way, makes it look as if it were a classic.

CENT A MIN

Another Canadian short of film action was also a noteworthy success, "Kingdom for a Horse" which had Old Dobbin in person as a commentator and covered Canada's equine celebrities from stamper bronchos to firehorses. Indicating very real Canadian interest in Canada's capital "Westminster of the West", an unusual featurette with Ottawa as its setting, is now in its second successful season. The musical accompaniment includes the sound of the famed Carillon in the Peace Tower.

"The Game Is Up" just released, takes the theatre-goer up among the mountain peaks with Canada's alpinists; "Distant Cousins" gave intimate glimpse of the Maori in New Zealand; and "City of Towers" is a featurette with Toronto's skyline as its background. An interesting development during the year was the popularity of "fact films", detailed pictorial reports on subjects of wide public interest. Dr. Locke of Williamsburg was the central figure in a film of this type and gold mining in the Rockies, the theme of another. This technique, Mr. Norrish comments, is being used extensively in educational and industrial films.

Poor Deers They Just Mustn't Be Annoyed
Burlington, Ont. — Men will be safe in Burlington this year. Said Chief Constable L. J. Smith recently. "If any male citizen complains of being made an offer of marriage and, instead of being highly flattered, feels that he is the victim of a conspiracy, public nuisance, or threat; then, if the case is substantiated, no police officer could refuse to give such protection as the law may provide. Man's most prized prerogative, that of proposing, should be safeguarded — less year or no leap year."

There is nothing in the world that, in human hands, does not lend itself to abuse. — Mahatma Gandhi.
"Men and nations are saved by good-will, not by political machinery." — Dean Inge.

Canada, an Integral Part of the Empire, —Mourns Loss of Her King—

Heart-Weakness Fatal To 71-Year-Old Sovereign — Prince Ascends Throne — Empire Plunged Into Mourning — Entire World Pays Respect.

HIS MAJESTY, THE KING

Sandringham, Norfolk, England, (Tuesday, Jan. 21). — George VI, By the Grace of God, King of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, and the British Dominions Beyond the Seas, Defender of Faith, and

On the 25th year, 8th month, 14th day and 24th hour of his reign. Death occurred at 11.55 p.m.

Shortly before midnight his physicians observed that the King's gallant fight against bronchial catarrh and a weakening heart had ended and that the Sovereign was about to die. They summoned to the bedside Queen Mary, the Prince of Wales and other members of the Royal Family from an adjoining room. Death came peacefully a few moments later.

The Queen was crying softly. She held the King's hand and listened to his final, labored breathing. She broke down as His Majesty died but quickly rallied and kissed the Monarch's bearded face, now still in death.

Lord Dawson of Penn, the king's physician since 1907, solemnly announced the King's death, addressing himself to the Prince of Wales.

"Your Majesty," he said, "your father is dead." With the last heartbeat of George V, Edward, Prince of Wales, became King, although the official proclamation does not take place immediately.

PRINCE SENDS MESSAGE
The Prince of Wales will assume the title of King Edward VIII, it is indicated.

He thus signed a message he sent the Lord Mayor of London shortly after his father's death. MESSAGE TO LORD MAYOR The new monarch sent this message to the Lord Mayor: "I am deeply grieved to inform you that my beloved father, the King, passed away peacefully at 11.55 to-night."

(Signed) Edward. Instantly upon the death of King George V, the Prince of Wales automatically succeeded to the Crown, which is the legal link between the peoples of the British Empire.

Ever since the days of Henry VIII the cry "The King is dead, long live the King" has signified there is no interregnum. The new king is the first bachelor to succeed to the throne since William IV.

LONG LIVE KING EDWARD THE EIGHTH

Long Live The King

"The King is dead! Long live the King!" And so Edward VIII enters on the reign which will have all the world for an audience and posterity for its critic.

For his task, as great and solemn as can come to any human, he has had years of training. When King George ascended the throne he was 46, Lord Morley, writing of the Parliament Bill of that day, said: "The situation forced the abdication of the Crown into a position of danger and the prominence naturally inflamed resentment against the Government and sympathetic concern for the young Sovereign." The plea of the "young Sovereign," indeed was proffered more than once, and Lord Rosebery made the would-be pathetic, but for once not very happy allusion to a "young and inexperienced King." Edward VIII is only 41, but considering the years, through which he has lived, and his steady training for his exalted office, only a romanticist could charge against him youth and inexperience.

More in the mould of Edward VII than of George V, he has lived his years avidly, but behind all his love of sport and of congenial society there has been hard work, appreciation of deeper values, sense of responsibility. No British Monarch has travelled the world more widely, nor has seen more of his own lands or people. For seven years, as Prince of Wales, he was on the world's oceans, travelling now to Canada, now to South Africa, now to Australia, meeting his future subjects in all Dominions and possessions. There is scarcely a land in the two hemispheres where, as the "Ambassador of Empire," he has not set his foot.

He ascends the throne at a time when the world is heavy with anxieties, when there is challenge to all Christendom. It is a solemn hour, and testing, but he must be fortified by the thought that at no period in the British story has the Monarchy been based more solidly—strengthened by the knowledge that, with faith for his Divine Guidance, millions of the earth pray "God Save the King." — Ottawa Journal.

"Streamline" Means Absence Of Non-Essentials In Dress

Chicago. — Now it's the "streamline girl of 1936" and the "streamline matron."

The holders of the titles are Mrs. Helen Bell, daughter of the Laird of the suburb of Winnipeg, and Mrs. James Getz, daughter-in-law of George F. Getz, treasurer of the Republican National Committee. They were chosen from scores of smartly dressed women attending the annual Emerson House benefit ball by Mrs. H. C. Hughes Dunaway, creator of new effects in modern art, and Walter Frazier, architect. The judges' definition of "streamline" was "simplification of everything, absence of non-essentials in dress and good carriage."

Advertising Did It

A story from New York is to the effect that Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt has opened a dress shop in the metropolis and is now regarded as one of the most successful business women.

It is not difficult to discover the reason for Mrs. Vanderbilt's sudden rise to prominence in business. Only a few months ago the newspapers were filled with reports of her fight against losing the guardianship of her little daughter whom relatives decided to take away from her. As a result, she became a familiar personality to millions of people. She lost the court battle but the publicity has been worth thousands of dollars in advertising and Mrs. Vanderbilt was astute enough to capitalize this advantage immediately.

It is a hint to those in business not to forget the life-blood of trade, which is advertising. — Welland Tribune.

"I think that, given the chance, people will become more and more expert in the effective use of leisure." — Henry Ford.

"The world has exchanged the sweet fragrance of hay for the stench of gasoline and the deadly monoxide." — Harold Bell Wright.

If you are following potatoes with grain, seeded with alfalfa, apply 1/2 ton to 1 ton ground limestone per acre immediately after the potatoes have been lifted. This lime will sweeten the soil for alfalfa or other legumes in 1937.

Time For Pitiless Realism

When a leading newspaper of a large city announced, a few weeks ago, that four of its residents were to be killed outright before New Year's Day, readers were joggled out of their complacency to read further. They discovered that the four citizens "marked for death" were to meet their end in a horrible form—on the highway.

The news writer had been on the "beat" that included the morgue. He was sickened by what he had seen. He had visited hospitals, and had witnessed the slow suffering of the maimed. He had been to the homes of victims, had heard piteous tales of children left without a father or mother, or compelled to look after themselves as well as the injured member of the family. The reporter wrote simply, but factually. He predicted that four more persons were to be killed in motor accidents—and he guessed with deadly accuracy.

"Safety First" has been drilled into the public ear so long that it has lost much of the effectiveness it once had. But stories of almost revolting realism, such as And Sudden Death which appeared originally in "Readers Digest", short circuit the route between comprehension and action. Scaring people to make them drive safely is justified by a mounting accident toll wherever automobiles are known. In the United States, for example, more persons lost their lives on highways in the past 18 months than were killed in battle during the similar period when that country was engaged in the World War.

A suggestion to the civic, service, and women's clubs: Why not a cold-blooded program, "Accident Prevention in Our Community," with the doctor, the undertaker, and chief of police telling what they know of the subject in realistic word pictures drawn from their own experience? — From an editorial in the Rotarian Magazine.

GET GOOD PRICES IN U.S. MARKETS FOR ONTARIO PIGS

WINDSOR — Ontario-raised hogs are being poured into Michigan almost as rapidly as they can be transported and farmers of Essex and Kent counties from which the bulk of the shipments are made are reaping a golden harvest.

Figures released here recently disclose that for the first time since the Republican protective tariff went into effect eight years ago Canadian farmers are finding it profitable to truck their hogs across the border, pay the duty and unload them on the Detroit packing houses at parallel or higher prices than obtained in the regular hog market.

Two thousand three hundred Essex County hogs weighing more than half a million pounds on the hoof have been trucked across the river here since September 10 when the influx began. In November alone 1,495 head weighing 334,700 pounds were transported across the river and sold to packers there. For these at one, on which the duty of two cents a pound was paid, the Ontario hog exporters received prices ranging from $2.50 to $3.50 per hundredweight above what they would receive if sold in the Ontario market.

A statistical table prepared from manifest sheets in the Detroit Customs office shows the speed with which the Canadian hog shippers hurried their swine across the Ambassador Bridge. During September total exports were 535 hogs weighing 116,525 pounds. These came from Tilbury, Alvinston, Eddy Mills, Harrow and Dresden.

In October 215 head were more, while in November a total of 1,189 hogs were sent across the river. The total weight was 336,700 pounds. In December to date shipments totalled 21,000 pounds. The grand total to date since September 10th is given as 522,000 pounds. The largest shipment came from Tilbury, with Essex, Chatham, Dresden, Alvinston and other towns contributing their quota.

Writer Deplores Lack Of Traditional Indian Handicrafts

SASKATOON — Fear that unless help and encouragement be given Indians in northern reserves many of the characteristic handicrafts of the natives of this domain would disappear was voiced here by Mrs. Leta Munday, author of "A Mounty's Wife." Mrs. Munday spent several years in the Chesterfield Indian district and last fall visited many of the Indian tribes in Saskatchewan.

Mrs. Munday believes the Government and mission schools do not take sufficient interest in traditional Indian art and thinks far too much poor imitation bead work is being turned out to accommodate the tourist trade.

Secrets of the leather and birch-bark work are handed down from generation to generation, Mrs. Munday said, but little effort is being made by the Government or by missionaries throughout the northland to encourage high grade work or to create a proper market for this original handicraft. Rather, it seems, the emphasis is on production.

Ishbel MacDonald Has Full Time Job On Her Hands

HIGH WYCOMBE, England — Ishbel MacDonald, daughter of Ramsay MacDonald, former Prime Minister, is finding her job—that of running an English inn—a full time one.

She had a busy day recently at the Plow Inn near High Wycombe, of which she has become the owner. A crowd of cyclists, motorists and hikers invaded the inn and the stock of beer was soon running low.

Miss MacDonald, who formerly was hostess at No. 10 Downing street, was kept busy serving lunches and drinks to the customers.

Week-end visitors to the inn included the United States Ambassador, Robert W. Bingham, and his wife.

Unusual Pact Made By 30 Scientists

Toronto. — In the distant future a medical paper will be published by an old scientist in which he will give the cause of the death of 29 of his colleagues.

Dr. C. H. Best, professor of physiology in the University of Toronto, revealed the strange pact in the course of a short speech at the week-end.

Thirty research workers of the school of hygiene undergo an annual physical examination. The examinee such other and from each other they draw blood which is chemically analyzed.

"The idea is," Dr. Best said, "that the survivor will write a paper on what caused the death of the others."

r arm Problems

Conducted by Professor Henry G. Bell

with the co-operation of the various departments of Ontario Agricultural College.

The business of farming is yearly becoming more and more dependent upon facts that have been gathered regarding livestock and husbandry management, crop production, soil management, disease and insect control and business organization of the farming industry.

Individual problems involving one or more of these, and many other phases of agriculture, require the attention of Ontario farmers from day to day. During the winter months there is a little more time for study of the most acute problems.

Through this column farmers may secure the latest information pertaining to their difficulties. To introduce to their difficulties, to introduce the following typical problems to indicate the information which should be given in order that a satisfactory answer can be made.

If answer is desired by letter enclosed stamped and addressed envelope for Professor Henry G. Bell, Room 421, 75 Adelaide St. W., Toronto, Ontario.

Question:

R. P. — I have a well-drained field for 1936 potatoes about which I wish information.

The higher part of the field is a light sandy loam, but the lower part is heavier and seems to hold the moisture better. I haven't been able to get a stand of alfalfa on the upper part for three years. The alfalfa on the lower part is getting thin. I haven't much manure for this field. I want to grow potatoes on the whole field this year. What treatment would you advise?

alfalfa on the lower part is getting thin. I haven't much manure for this field. I want to grow potatoes on the whole field this year. What treatment would you advise?

Answer:

It would appear from your description that the field has been pretty well removed, especially from the light soil of the upper part of the field. We would advise you to have soil from the entire field tested for acidity. A three ton crop of alfalfa removes about 280 lbs. of lime and 134 lbs. of potash to the acre. It may be that the soil on the lower part is becoming too acid for best alfalfa, too.

As a general rule, it is not best to plant potatoes on an alkaline soil nor is it good practice to lime a soil in preparation for potatoes. Slight acidity of soil is favorable to potato growing since potato scab and other diseases do not thrive in acid soils.

Your soils, especially those of the lower part of the field will be fairly well supplied with organic matter or plant refuse, and the lower soil should have a fair supply of nitrogen.

We would advise you to apply 500 to 750 lbs. per acre of 4-8-10 fertilizer for potatoes. On tests throughout the province a 4-8-10 is the best analysis of fertilizers for potatoes. If possible, put on a potato fertilizer with a combined potato and fertilizer planter so that the fertilizer will not fall on the potato piece and the potato piece rest immediately on the fertilizer.

Canadian Dentist Is Mankind's Benefactor

The mantle "benefactor of all mankind" is worn with easy grace by Dr. Leroy L. Hartman, New York, Canadian professor of dentistry that spelled doom to the 10,000 little devils who inhabit every dental drill.

Dr. Hartman, a native of Victoria, B.C., experimented for 20 years before bringing forth his simple and inexpensive pain-killer. An application deadens a decayed tooth to the point where the heaviest-handed dentist may do his worst with his most diabolical drill and the patient can still come up with a grin.

The 42-year-old Canadian, now professor of dentistry at Columbia university, New York, might easily have made a fortune with his discovery. But he refused to exercise the patent held by the university.

"It is my contribution to humanity," he said. "I hope it will be the means of relieving much unnecessary suffering."

That he does not hope in vain is attested by the New York press, which bestowed the mantle of world benefactor upon him. The newspapers are heavy with pictures recording the phenomenon of a patient in a dentist's chair actually smiling.

Snow Protects Fruit Orchards

The Niagara fruit growers are once more concerned about the peach buds. Whether the quick drop in temperature will affect the peach buds will not be known for some time, growers state, a time only can tell. It is stated that the peach buds can weather up to 15 below zero, a temperature rare in Niagara peninsula, yet nearly the entire crop of peaches was wiped out two years ago by frost.

Growers believe the large quantities of snow in the orchards during the cold spell will help to save the trees, as the roots are protected from the cold and the snow likewise keeps the field mice from gnawing the bark.

TRAFFIC CASES

H.T.O. Darby of highway 8 secured three convictions of traffic violations in Friday's county police court. R. E. Book and Sons, rubber dealers of Smithville, paid $12 for overloading with maple logs. Cecil Jacobs, Grimsby, earned a dismissal on a charge of reckless driving and James McCann of Toronto paid $10 for cutting-in as did Edward Gregory of Toronto for speeding.

Neil Hopkins, whose farm is at Van Wagner's Beach, is another who is feeding them, claiming that they come right up to his doorstep for the food. R. E. GRIMSBY AND DISTRICT HONOR LATE KING GEORGE

The British throne is stronger than ever today. George came to the throne after Edward VII, known throughout the world as the Peace-maker. Throughout the long reign the love, wisdom and counsel given by the king has endeared him to all hearts and in the celebrations of last year the world learned something of the popularity of King George.

"His rule has been under the constitution he was taught to love. But he was King. Enough of royal right there was for authority, fealty, reverence and this he maintained and enlarged.

"It has been a generous reign. The British Empire has prospered. New colonies were added. The world-wide depression is fast becoming a thing of the past for the great family of nations. Empire conferences have shown the warm loyalty of every section. Liberty has been enlarged in every direction. Literature has flourished and science has advanced beyond precedent. People are better housed and clothed and fed and the rights of the humble have been regarded. The value of life has been increased."

Everywhere the British name and law and the British flag are held in honor. "He ruled by love, by love his labors had been prompted. He worked so hard because he loved his people and would sacrifice himself for them. His conscience kept before him a high standard of life. He loved his wife, he loved his family, he loved his subjects. The strength of his character had deep springs in his trust in God. He was a self-disciplined, self-controlled man, a man of worship and of prayer."

"He elevated the whole tone of society by his perpetual conscientious adherence to the law of right which he always has before his eyes."

"We cannot measure the value of the work he accomplished. We are sure that as the passes and in perspective we look at his reign he will continue to be hailed one of Britain's greatest sovereigns."

AWAY BACK WHEN

the Beach season the middle of June 1911, and had a wonderfully successful season, playing two different bills a week with new scenery for every show. Wylie made plenty of potatoes that year and believe me you I garnered in my share. If I only had some of it now. The house opened for the first three days of the first week playing that year stirring drama "In Old Kentucky" and did Miss Gibney knock the local yokels for a row of corn cribs with her acting and when as the jockey she rode her own horse to victory, and what is more a real horse was on the stage with Jockey Gibney in the saddle all decked out in the racing silks of the Norman Sutherland racing stable and the horse was one of his racing thoroughbreds. The second half of the week that great drama of many thousand productions, "The Bishop's Carriage" was produced and a real bishop's carriage and team with Nick Book as coachman drove onto the stage. The outfit was borrowed from the late John Hewitt. These two first productions sold the Auditorium and the Sarah Gibney Co. to the public in a big way and for the rest of the season everything was scotch and soda for all concerned.

The Gibney Co. dog and all, moved to Kitchener that fall where they played for six straight months and broke all Canadian records for one company playing a period of time in one spot. After the Kitchener season they played in various cities in Ontario and did not return to the Beach until the season of 1913. In 1912 Wylie had more or less relinquished his control of the Beach and yours truly was a knight of the grip in Western Canada. A stock company of parts managed at various times throughout the season by Harry Staley, Al Beckerish and Al McCourt did not have any top good luck.

When the Gibneys returned to the Beach in 1913 they expected to have a successful season, but such did not turn out to be the case, for after six weeks running they found themselves at the end of July $1,700 in the bag and no help in sight. I was again in the wild and woolly west and the Gibney crew were sending out distress signals every day. As my trip was finished I hopped a rattler and came east and what cries of joy greeted my arrival in the old show house. "Why all the red ink on the ledger pages?" I asked. "Either poor publicity or else not the right kind of publicity, or something" replied Wilson. I took off my shirt and went to work. In 48 hours every man woman and child for 50 miles around was gazing at full sheets bedecked with red ink telling of the virtues of this great little show troupe and that the next two bills would be those heart wringing dramas of all time "East Lynne" and "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and that none other than J. Orion (Bonesolorous) Livingston would play the part of "Mark The Lawyer," and he did. Boy did we pack them in, and did we. For the next five weeks the Sarah Gibney Stock Co. was the talk of the town and the toast of the county and when the season closed in September the company was out of debt and had a bank roll besides.

There are hundreds of people in this district that witnessed "In Old Kentucky" at the Beach in 1911. Next week will probably be the last chance they will ever have to see this drama again, for all have come. To those younger generation who have sprung up since 1911, this will probably be their first and last time of seeing this production, which with Will Rogers in the leading role should be the best that has ever yet been produced.

ONCE OVER ON SPORT

PEACH KINGS LOSE TO DUNNVILLE

One of the best exhibitions of real hockey was staged at Dunnville last Friday night when Peach Kings lost to the Mudcats by the score 7-4. In spite of severe weather and the fact that the game was over an hour late starting, a good crowd was on hand and both teams travelled at top speed delighting the fans with fast clever play. With eight minutes to go to finish the game Peach Kings were leading 4-3 but faded badly and the Mudcats ran in four goals to win with a comfortable margin.

THOROLD DEFEATS HAGERSVILLE BY SCORE OF 7-0

At the Grimsby Arena last Friday night Thorold defeated Hagersville 7-0 in a game which saw practically every rule in the book broken by both teams. Thorold were much the better team scoring three goals in the first period and four in the last while their opponents were unable to get on the score sheet.

Jack Worthing of Hamilton who refereed the game gave a very poor exhibition of officiating and roused the ire of the Hagersville players when he continually refused to call offside. Robbins on the visitors defence completely lost his head and gave a disgraceful display when he deliberately shot the puck at Worthing twice and when penalized, kicked the official and then swung his stick at him. Robbins was banished from the game and his team played a man short for ten minutes.

Thorold's two forward lines were clicking perfectly and their defence was almost impregnable. McGregor in the nets had a comparatively easy time as Hagersville seemed unable to find the net. McGregor was injured and had to leave the game three minutes before full time when he dove for the puck, landing on his elbow and displacing a cartilage. He was replaced by Herberts a junior goalie who gave a good account of himself.
